

MSU Physiology Society Active Membership Requirements

To become an active member in the MSU Physiology Society:

1. One must complete the standard application,
2. Pay dues of $20 for Fall semester. If paid in Fall semester, $10 for Spring semester. If you did not pay your dues or are new, $20 for Spring semester.
3. Acquire at least 3 points in attending activities and meetings per semester

Reward of becoming a member:

- By paying dues, the individual receives a Physiology Society T-shirt and agrees to maintain their membership by achieving 3 points from the society's activities per semester.
- To be considered an active member, the individual must attend at activities consisting of either meetings or volunteer events, each being worth one point. Members can attend any combination of meetings or volunteer events as long as 3 points are reached for the semester.
- If one does not attend achieve 3 points, they will not be considered an active member making them ineligible to use membership on resumes and applications. In this instance, previously paid dues are not refundable despite loss of membership. This insures dedicated participation from all members.
- If an individual joins the Physiology Society after the start of the Spring Semester, they can still be considered an active member if he/she pays dues ($10 for returning, $20 for new) and achieves 3 points.
- Active members will be posted on the society's website to be used as a reference for graduate/medical schools and employers to recognize the student's efforts.
- The benefits of being an active member include taking full advantage of the Physiology Society's events, being able to list the Physiology Society on resumes, being eligible for the Society's Distinguished member award, and receiving a Certificate of Physiology Society Greatness
